"Where the Elms in stately glory,
Spreading branches raise,
There our cherished Alma Mater,
Hears our song of praise.
School we love, Elmhurst,
Live for aye,
God shed his grace on thee.
Loyal be thy sons and daughters
To thy memory."
THE ELMS

1934

PUBLISHED BY THE STUDENTS OF ELMHURST COLLEGE
ELMHURST, ILLINOIS
Recognizing that all life has elements of the dramatic, and realizing that college life is packed, so to speak, chockful of dramatic possibilities, the editors of this annual decided to portray campus personalities and campus activities after the manner of the dramatic. The formal theme idea has not been observed; however, a sort of vague symbolism, based on the personality of negro music, and on the personality of the modern drama, as exemplified by Eugene O'Neill, has been interwoven through the book.

STATISTICAL BRIEF
The Players
Dr. Timothy Lehmann succeeded Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr as president of Elmhurst College in 1928. His greatest accomplishment has been the successful completion of a million dollar endowment campaign. His untiring efforts to gain official recognition for Elmhurst were finally rewarded early in April, when Elmhurst College was fully accredited by the North Central Association.

CLASSES
The inevitable temptation that comes to any class historian is to reiterate things long since said, praise the good things, overlook all shortcomings, and, in short, to paint an obviously misleading, obviously silly picture. This history, then, will be an attempt to give merely as accurate a resume of class activities as possible.

The Class of '34 began four years ago with 107 members. But with the onslaught of the years, as the poet would say, this group has gradually diminished to 35. The Class of '34 initiated coeducation at Elmhurst College, which fact may invoke the blessings of the all-powerful upon it, or may not. It was the largest freshman class in campus history, will be the largest graduating Class. (There—we've observed the American tradition!) The Class of '34 undoubtedly has the greatest number of famous personages ever assembled together in one group, is a classic example of what procrastination will do, put on the classiest prom in Elmhurst history, and has the doubtful honor of fathering an embryonic bridegroom.
Baumrucker enjoys the distinction of being the first senior to announce his prom date. Baunmy achieved no small measure of fame during his freshman year by a gallant attempt to produce a presentable schurrbart (mustache to you). The attempt failed. And twenty Oak Park girls, weeping and wailing, berated an unkind Providence. Baumrucker is Senior Class President. He is editor of the '34 Elms. His brindle brown roadster has accelerated many a feminine heart. He is an economist de luxe (which means he has a swell line). His pet hobbies are swimming, wearing ducky little white hats and gaily striped socks, and trying to warble "Goofus" in French.

Beck is undoubtedly Elmhurst's greatest campus politician of all time. Reinhard (call him that and run) would rather discuss national problems than eat. And woe unto the unwary lad who falls afoul of his sharp logic and caustic tongue. Beck confesses to a weakness for campaign cigars (his appearance at football games with a unique pipe notwithstanding). His favorite drink is coffee (ala Greek). His favorite diversion is writing socialist tracts and religion term papers. He gets a big kick out of freshman pranks. His seemingly inexhaustible fund of stories (marine and otherwise) has enlivened many a dull bull session, and these self-same tales have caused at least ten small riots in the Commons. And he wears the doggiest hat on the campus!

When Wilbert first came to Elmhurst, they called him Bill, but now (and either Moon or Zulu is responsible), he's "Brush." He hails from St. Louis, but he picked a girl from Calumet, to the infinite disgust and dismay of his fellow-townsmen. Brush is a quiet, unassuming sort of fellow. He plays a bang-up game of baseball, is a wiz at German, can make the best fried potatoes you ever ate, has a yen for collecting photographs of pretty girls, and is the only man on the campus who can approach Sharvy Umbeck's non-stop commuting record.

Whether petite Milly is Irish or not we've not positive, but there is no doubt about the Irish in her sunny smile and her effectively brief temper. Besides being a sort of generalissimo at the school of music, she has been active in the Y. W. C. A., and is noted for her characterizations of children (of all things), in the College Theatre. Milly is an English major, and quite a good one; she also enjoys the reputation of being one of the few people who can be fresh with Prof. Carlson, and get away with it.

Jim is one of the ever-so-famous DeTuerk boys from Erie, who spend their lives making other people envious of their physical prowess. What Elmhurst will do for athletes when they leave is a question about which Coach Langhorst is worrying himself to death. Jim was a speedy dash man and a heady end. Last fall he was assistant football coach, and this spring he is doing a good job of handling the track squad. Jim is a good deal more of a student than most athletes; he is vitally interested in education and history. This year he is house chairman at Maple Lodge, and is quite familiar with the tribulations of a householder.

Here is the rest of the family—"Jock." He is going to follow in his Dad's footsteps and be an M.D. Jock is a steady, clear-headed biologist, a Student Union president, and one of the staunchest and "fightinest" lads ever to battle on the gridiron. When he came to Elmhurst all he could do was to play football and smile. Now he does just about everything well, and still smiles. Whenever Jock runs up against anything difficult, whether it's a two hundred and fifty pound tackle or twenty-four hour problem in physics, he just grins at it, and proceeds to take it for a ride. He has found that the best way to get through life is not to worry—just go and do something.

If Dreusicke were to be dealt with after the manner of Mark Twain's "Jumping Frog" he would still manage to break track records. Elmhurst is going to miss his phenomenal broadjumping, and his speed and elusiveness in the backfield. He has been for several years an efficient Chairman of Athletics on the Student Union. He never seems to wear himself out over his books, and still manages to come through with good grades. He is the hitherto unknown perpetrator of countless dormitory pranks and escapades and the only time his good humor fails him is when dealing with the Maple Lodge mascot, Patay. All year Armin and "the pooh" have waged relentless warfare. In 1932 Armin qualified for the Olympic Games in the broad jump, but was unable to compete, much to the disappointment of his friends.

Gerfen's chief occupations are collecting nicknames, philandering, and sleeping. Aside from these, he plays hot tennis, mediocre pingpong, lucky poker and terrible casino. During the past semester he has been making life miserable for the teachers and children at Hawthorne Public School, where he indulges in practice teaching. In his major, English, Dick is well known for his extreme brilliance and equally extreme reluctance to get work done on time. Lately he has been making himself notorious by writing a weekly stint of gossip for the Elm Bark. Dick says he is going out to teach the gospel of good English and roaring bad manners to little children. For the present, Coach Arens is wondering what he will do for a number one tennis player when the 1935 season rolls around.

James was a member of that triumvirate of profound philosophical thinkers (Krueger and Meyer were his cohorts), who formed the bulwark of last year's Philosophy Club, and who were the despair of Pete Stavrostopoulos. In lucid moments—between religion and education classes—James is a pleasantly cynical young man, with an engaging frankness; slim and defiantly devil-may-care. His hobby is aviation; it is in the air that he gratifies his whims and caprices (one of his favorite Sunday morning proclivities is to swoop over a certain church, drowning out the pastor's voice with a wide-open cutout), and gets rid of his pet peeves. He sings lustily in chapel, plays a sax ala Wayne King, has won fame as an interrogator of Assembly speakers.
Haude's name will live long at Elmhurst. He was one of the biggest, finest, best, all-round "promoters" we have ever had. He can promote (and does) anything from extra helpings to vast financial schemes. Bill is really a Biology major, and a good one, and loaded himself with a lot of English courses this year. Between advancing fence-busting arguments on religion and education, and cutting classes left and right, he has earned a great reputation as a "radical." Bill is a great fellow to have around, and the school will be decidedly less lively when he has left. His present enthusiasm is the fitting out of a super-expedition to Alaska—or is it Mexico? All who want to get on board come running—line forms to the left.

Jiggs became famous with his "Slippery Elm," which enjoyed a huge "succes de scandale" as a very thinly veiled exposé of goings-on in the college family. He was born in Cincinnati, lives in Cleveland at the present moment; seems proud of it. During the last eight of his twenty-six years he has variously been hobo, shipping clerk, bank runner, section hand, and college student. He is a connoisseur of excellent vintages, goes to chapel once a week, is a rotten biologist, a good actor and is the idol of at least ten sophomores. He started at Elmhurst four years ago, has had a headache ever since. Now he's going to write a life of Hazlitt, to try and get rid of it.

Martha is an English major. She admires Tennyson, doesn't particularly care about Browning, likes German restaurants, and is said to blush violently whenever a certain Eden senior's name is mentioned. Marty is a good student; every time the honor roll came out, her name, like Abou-ben-Adhem's, led all the rest. A mainstay in Hille's Glee Club, a darn good "Kathie" in Alt Heidelberg, and one of the Student Union. Marty has very capably filled a very large niche in campus life.
Pants is a victim of co-education. The poor guy is in love. However, between dances, auto rides, and sundry other things (almost anything you can think of will do), he still managed to swat a mean drum in the band, manage the baseball team of '32, and help direct the destinies of this year's Elms.

Scholastically, Pants is another of Doc Strong's demon economists. Besides being a first class statistician, he was also the final authority on any question concerning the economics of coal mining.

Ring is so quiet and self-affacing that it's a wonder he gets along in a world where everybody else is shouting his lungs out about something or other. He makes noise enough in the band, and ever since his freshman year has been a mainstay in the first tenor section of the Glee Club. He is an unostentatious, but deadly man on the basketball floor, and distinguished himself in intramurals. Harry believes in taking things as they come; nothing disturbs his good nature and calm. Sometime during his Junior year, he picked up a decidedly opprobrious nickname, which we hope won't stick to him when he gets out of school. He has one claim to lasting fame; he can stay awake indefinitely during Biology lectures.

If asked what he learned at college, Elver would probably say that it was how to fill his note-books with silly pictures, and how to high-jump not less than four feet or more than five. He is an example of what modesty and a God-fearing pan can do for a man. He has twice been on the Student Union, and he edited the notorious 1933 Elms. His latest effort at self-expression is a sinister-looking black hat, worn on state occasions, which makes him look like a cross between Mahatma Gandhi and Gen. Hugh Johnson. He writes scintillating and shocking prose, sings like Tibbett, likes roast-beef, poetry, and nutty women, shuns publicity, has notions about reincarnation, snores, and is generally a "great guy."

Senny enjoys the distinction of being the last Academy student to linger in our midst. He came back to Elmhurst in 1932 after an absence of several years, and can tell great tales of the days when Boji Klein was a freshman—well, maybe not a freshman—and coeds on the campus were only a heavenly or harassing dream—take your pick of adjectives. Senny is a genial, obliging fellow, with a tremendous faculty for absorbing the razz—up to a certain point, when it suddenly becomes painful to the razzer. Any time you desire entertainment, get Sennewald to talk about his adventures in the seaports of the world, or begin a discussion of the drama.

Butch came up from Carlyle to study for the ministry, but changed his mind in midstream and decided on undertaking as a profession. He will be one of the few men in that field who doesn’t look like what they are. With his pleasant pan beaming away at the obsequies, it will be a wonder everybody won’t want to go off and die, for the sheer delight of it. Steinmann gave promise of being a track star, but found that he was too busy to indulge in his favorite sport. He has made a host of friends here in Elmhurst and will surely continue to do so.

Trying to write one of these blurbs about Marian is no mean task. She is at once so much of the delightful and the demure young lass, that it’s a positive treat to know her. Her avowed “squirreliness” has made her one of the most popular young people on the campus, which is as it should be. Her chief interests are enjoying life, amusing people, and messing about with amateur dramatics; in the latter field she has proved to be an excellent, if somewhat temperamental, actress, and a fiery director who always manages to bring out the “mosta of the besta” in her players. The campus will be a sadder and no wiser place after Marian has left it. Ask her sometime why she chose philosophy as a major if you have the nerve; we never did.

Van Dyck, like most Texans, is tall and spare, but there isn’t a drawl in him. He says he is too busy to go around being an authentic Texan. Van is beyond doubt the busiest man in his class. What with running the book store, being amiable and business-like at the School of Music, and arguing with the laundryman, he is hard put to it to get any studying done. At Maple Lodge he has in operation all kinds of interesting devices for keeping himself—and the rest of the lads—awake at night. The best way to annoy Van is to tell him how he has changed since he was a freshman. Another way is to tell him that he never changes. His favorite diversions are telling interminable stories, and achieving lightning transitions from healthy sanity to delightful goofiness. He is gifted with a great sense of humor, and is one of the few people to hold a “Y” presidency without taking himself too seriously.

Warner, familiarly known as “Pop,” became famous this year as the Father Confessor and Keeper of the Peace of South Hall. Pop also kept a close eye on the finances of the Elm Bark, and his reign as Business Manager of that publication was eminently successful; for the first time in years the ledger balance was written with blue ink. He succeeded Ed Bowen last year as Pounder of the Big Bass Drum, and has been a worthy successor in every respect. He is particularly fond of baseball, is an ardent collector of religious books, and can generally be found in Dewey’s sanctum (library, you egg!).

“Red” is the diminutive hustler who has played such a bang-up game at second base for the nine for the last few years. At basketball, his speed and brilliant shooting won him a letter last season. His peppy presence will be missed in nearly every form of college activity, from basketball to cutting classes. As a librarian, he will be remembered for the peremptory pencil-tapping which inevitably preceded a polite but urgent request to “pipe down or sema.” He and VanDyck are roommates at Maple Lodge and Red has his hands full trying to keep Van in line. As ardent Missourians Red and Chet Uthlaut have rousing arguments concerning mules, native beverages, and Missouri athletics.
Since coming to Elmhurst, Sheenie has registered no less than a 20 percent gain in weight, and a 3.2 percent gain in the length of his beard. His chief interests are athletics and a twangy old guitar, but rumor has it that he sometimes "steadies." (Note: See Elm Bark, issue of March). Sheenie has been varsity quarter-back for two years. His vicious tackling (and a certain Shurtleff half-back will back me up in this, I think), and heady all-round defensive play made him a valuable lad to have around.

I think that statistics will bear me out when I say that Ora spent more time on crutches during his four years at Elmhurst than any other man in campus history. Between crutches, however, he managed to be a good student, and a leader in his group. As Pre-The Prexy, he kept the divine spark burning in the hearts of our earnest young theologs. In addition, he was "Y" Treasurer last year, a member of the Student Union, and generally made his presence felt wherever he happened to be. The campus will miss Ora—and, I almost forgot, his inevitable motorcycle.
The Junior Class contains most of the campus leaders, scholastically, athletically, and aesthetically (they admit it). It is variously composed — besides the aforementioned prodigies — of long-haired poets and admirers of Samuel Hoffenstein, a few pretty women, at least six “mal d’amours,” a lot of athletes, and not a small number of embryonic theologians.

The Juniors have won more intramural championships than they can count, which may or may not be a crowning achievement. They introduced the cabaret to Elmhurst College. The first Prom Queen in campus history will be a member of the Junior Class. (Now that you have heard concerning this most unusual, to say the least, group, what say ye? Chorus: Nuts!)

The Sophomore Class, consisting of forty men and thirteen women, is Elmhurst’s second largest in point of numbers. In the course of its two year career, the class has made numerous important contributions to the life of Elmhurst, both curricular and extra-curricular. The Class of ’36 has always been well represented on the Honor Roll, and in addition placed many valuable men on the various athletic teams. In girl’s athletics, too, the class has maintained a prominent position; its feminine representatives having won the basketball championship for two successive years.

Two successful parties were arranged by the Sophomores, the Freshman Frolic of last year, and the Soph Strut of the present school year.

According to the statement of Dean Mueller in the Elmhurst Bulletin of March, 1934, the Freshman Class of last year was “a Freshman Class of exceptional quality.” The Freshmen of last year are the Sophomores of this year!

HE LASSIES and chappies who make up the class of '37 are a sturdy determined lot, which probably accounts for that holocaust so appropriately called Kangaroo Kourt. The Kourt was supposed to metamorphose the frosh colors from green to blue and white; however, after the various judgments had been handed down, and the various penalties assessed, instead of blue and white, the predominating colors were black and blue (distributed among both frosh and upperclassmen).

The class of 102 freshmen is the second largest ever to enter Elmhurst. They are a talented outfit—they play in the band; they sing in the Glee Club; they are actors and actresses. The frosh intramural football and basketball teams have always been contenders (just contenders, but then—nuts, you finish it) for those titles. Besides all these accomplishments, they are also a modest crew, and the Elms predicts a brilliant future for '37.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT

ITEMIZED EVIDENCE LEADING TO THE ESSENTIAL FACTS
Register
THE UNION has completed another year of quiet but efficient effort toward regulating student affairs. No questions of soul-stirring interest came up, unless one ought to include the experimental work conducted with flooding the “midway” to make a skating rink, or the acrimonious debates, chiefly conducted by Mr. Beck upon the question of lost appropriations. The usual Homecoming festivities were pulled off in the usual successful fashion. Meetings were held by the committees who spent their time trying to adjourn in half an hour. The S. U. store kept regular hours, and continued to be a popular rendezvous for the elite.

An impromptu celebration of the acceptance of the school into the North Central Association was engineered with the backing of the Union, and furnished a great day for the lads and lasses, topped off by an informal dance in the evening. And so the year went by. The 1934-35 Union should have a busy year. The problem of the newly-acquired recreation room should furnish plenty of work, and there are a number of spots in the constitution which could do with a few changes. (Student Union constitutions, one finds, exist for the sole purpose of having changes made in them.) Bill Taebel, the president elect, says he is all ready to start on a bang-up year. We wish him luck; the Union, although frequently made light of, accomplishes real, if not startling, work on our campus.

THE WOMEN'S UNION

The Women's Union was organized this year. Its purpose as an organization is to sponsor the social, athletic, and aesthetic life of the young women of the college. The Women's Union sponsors the Women's Recreation Room, a swellelegant place for bridge, tea parties, and what not. Its major activities during the year have been the Scavenger Hunt, planned jointly with the Y. M. C. A., the Coed Dance (wherein Elmhurst's bachelors were royally entertained), and a Little Sister Tea.

The Athletic Committee of the Union held an interclass tournament, both in soccer and in basketball. A school tennis team was organized. In May, a banquet was held, at which awards were given on the basis of points won in various activities throughout the year.

THE ELM BARK is the official weekly publication of Elmhurst College. It is a medium for scandal, student-opinion, and out-and-out news. No startling changes or innovations were made during 1933-34. The Slippery Elm was placed in the hands of the Vulgarians; and the flower of campus romance blossomed and bloomed, and was publicized.

On March twenty-first the old staff—W. Herman Ortwein, editor; Jessie Chapman, managing editor; Verne H. Warner, business manager—ceded their positions to the newly elected staff. George Dusheck became editor; Theodore Krohne, managing editor; Carl Kroenlein, business manager.

Judging from the excellent work that the new staff has produced so far, it seems safe to predict that the Elm Bark next year will be more than just a re-hash of trite news, that it will be a lively, up-to-the-minute publication.

JOHN REZATTO smokes a smooth blend of tobacco in a sheepish old briar pipe. Between pipefuls he directs an equally smooth Glee Club. John had another fine club this year. It toured Wisconsin, sang many concerts in and about Chicago, and was featured over N.B.C. And all this despite ineligibility woes, whiskey tenors, financial difficulties, and a new rehearsal room. We believe John deserves a new briar pipe!

The officers of this year's Glee Club are: Wm. Walch, President, Harry Ring, Vice-President, Herbert Stahlhut, Secretary, and Frank Kroll, Business Manager. The club's accompanist is Hack Price, and Elver Schroeder, baritone, was its soloist.

THE BAND

JOHN REZATTO, brilliant conductor of the Men's Glee Club, took over the baton of "Joe" Elliott this year, and ably demonstrated that a college band can produce music as well as noise. Besides providing ear-splitting inspiration at basketball games, making a few uproarious tours, two features of the 1933-34 band were the final full concert given in the fall, and its manly tootling for the historic N. C. A. accreditation celebration. The boys will long remember the trip to Milwaukee with, or rather, about four hours behind the football team. Rezatto is well pleased with the band's showing, and hopes to add a few new features next year—a fan dancer or two, and a snake-charming act, if we are not mistaken.

Due to the unusual press of extra-curricular activities, the band demobilized in spring. However, the boys will be back on the job again bright and early next fall.
Women's Glee Club

The Elmhurst College Women's Glee Club, an organization consisting of twenty-five members, is in its fourth year of existence. Mr. Waldemar B. Hille, Dean of the School of Music, has been its director ever since the club was formed. According to him, considerable progress has been made in the achievement of the club, and also in its vocal quality.

In April, the third annual concert tour was made, the stops including St. Louis, Mo., Quincy, Ill., and points en route. Various local concerts were given during the year.

Miss Gerda Mohri, '35, lyric soprano, is the soloist for the organization, and Miss Laura Press, '36, is the reader. Miss Jane Coffey, '35, is the accompanist. The Women's Sextette is composed of girls chosen from the organization. This group frequently appears in separate concerts of its own.
CAMPUS CHOIR

Under the direction of Waldemar Hille, the choir made Thursday morning chapel services periods of the right kind of worship. The voices were well blended and balanced, and the total effect of their singing was quiet and dignified. The addition of several new voices provided the director with material for several good solo numbers. If the influx of good voices continues, Hille hopes to have a mixed choir that will rank with the best.
The Y supervised (?) the Men's Recreation Room for the last time this year. Next year's cabinet will not be bothered by lost ping-pong balls, broken paddles, and a raucous radio (Student Union Moguls will see to those weighty matters), but will be able to devote more time to world problems, which will be discussed in forums, assemblies, and Room 315 (South Hall). The Y men of this year, feel that the spirit of their organization, although an intangible sort of thing, did fit into the Christian aims of Elmhurst College.

The Y, besides supervising the Recreation Room, cooperated with the Administration and the Women's Union during Freshman Week; the husky stalwarts of the cabinet saw to it that freshmen were very properly introduced to the intricacies of bull-sessions, campus social affairs, and the other mysteries of college life. Finally, the Deputations Committee of the Y admirably handled the difficult problem of arranging Chapel Programs. At frequent intervals, this committee secured student leaders to conduct the services. The Y fills a definite niche in the student life of Elmhurst College.
WITH Professor Paul Lehmann as its faculty advisor, the Pre-theological Club enjoyed an inspiring year. The meetings proved interesting and thought-provoking. A number of speakers addressed the man, among them Professor Biegelleisen of Eden Seminary, Rev. G. Klemme, Dr. S. D. Press, and Rev. Chworowsky of the College Church. Delegates were sent to the conference of the Interseminary Student Union, held in Chicago in February. With the new enthusiasm engendered in the organization this year, it should become, in the future, a factor of increasing importance in molding the spiritual welfare of Elmhurst's B.D. candidates.

Several of the regular meetings were held at Maple Lodge. Refreshments were usually served and the "Prethes" enjoyed a comfortable home-like environment for their get-togethers. According to President Ora Wintermeyer, next year should see the Pre-theological Club one of the most influential on the campus.
HE GOETHE VEREIN was organized as a new German society on our campus this year. Its avowed purpose has been to foster an interest in the study of German literature and culture and to provide occasions in which all those interested in German might gather to enjoy programs in that language. Meetings are held once each month.

Under the able direction of its faculty advisor, Dr. E. H. Dummer, the Goethe Verein presented several special programs during the course of the year. The most notable of these were the Christmas program and pageant presented at the December meeting of the organization; the special program commemorating the death of Goethe; and several programs featuring guest speakers, who brought much interesting information on different phases of German life and literature.
FRENCH CLUB

The French Club, which has completed its second year on the campus, has as its purpose the development of students interest in the French language and customs. Meetings are held once a month; they are conducted entirely in French. It is rumored that Prof. Stanger is an addict of that very delightful game of Twenty Questions, played in French. (Answers must be either "oui" or "non.")

A play, "Rideaux," was produced by the club in February; it was highly successful, from an artistic standpoint. Several native Frenchmen addressed the club during the latter part of the second semester, and their informal talks proved to be both entertaining and instructive.

Although the club is a rather new organization, it is nevertheless a live one, and judging from its increase in membership this year, 1934-35 should be a banner year.
DIRECTOR ARENDS saw a dream come true in the 1933-34 season of the Theatre. He presented a light opera which was an outstanding success, notwithstanding a number of revolutionary innovations, such as the absence of an orchestra, some original scenic arrangements, and a Keystone Comedy effect in the choruses. "The Pirates of Penzance" played two nights to good houses, and can be chalked up as one more success for the Elmhurst College Theatre.

"Cues" the dramatic club organized in 1932, was slightly revamped this year, and now, under its more dignified title, operates as a closer knit unit. The same officers were retained, the membership remained the same, and regular monthly meetings were held.

Another feature of this year's season was the series of one-act plays, directed and play by students. Marian Stringer and Betty Roefer, the two directors, presented their plays, "He Said and She Said" and "The Man in the Bowler Hat” before the student body, with marked success. The latter play was later produced at York High by the same group.

“Dear Brutus,” Barrie’s well known play, ran two nights in the college gymnasium, April 26 and 27. In this production, Director Arends used two casts, with several of the players alternating in different roles. From all indications, the experiment was highly successful. Many “old-timers” on the campus say that the play was the best production since “Outward Bound,” the 1931 spring play, and some think it was the best in the Theatre’s history. Mr. Arends says that prospects for next year are very bright. Many of the “veterans” are leaving school, but there is an abundance of unusual talent among the younger students. If all goes well, the Elmhurst College Theatre will take a play “on the road,” in 1933, thus proving that the Glee Clubs are not the only groups that make tours.

Looking back over the last four years since Elmhurst went co-educational, one finds that the College Theatre, under Professor Arends, produced seven major plays and half a dozen one-acts, not one of which was a professional failure, or even close to it. Here is the line-up of the major plays, in the order of their appearance: Outward Bound, Duley, Alt Heidelberg, To The Ladies, House Party, The Pirates of Penzance, and Dear Brutus. This is a fine record, one of which Mr. Arends and all of us can be proud. For a school of Elmhurst’s size and facilities, we have a theatrical reputation that rates with the best.
THE SATURDAY SOVIET

In the Second Year of Its Propaedeutics

THE SATURDAY SOVIET is a non-voting, non-officered, non-dues-paying, non-legalized or non-lawmaking committee organization subscribing to those ladies and gentlemen who exhibit scholarly tastes, interest in the fine arts and tolerant humanism, and devotion to the outdoor life with mild physical exercise. In regard to the latter category it has affinities with Bohemian Sokolism; to the two preceding categories, with the social science and education generally. It is designed to plan weekly novelty programs in accordance with its broad philosophic objectives, as well as in intimate relation to the social calendar, to significant local and national events, and to those academic activities engaging its propaganda. Everyone is invited to help authorize and follow through its crossing lines of social and educational alertness, townspeople no less than students.

HE YEAR'S athletic program of games was spotted with innendo, with a few events which will pass down as striking memories. The homecoming game with Wheaton, always the high spot of the season, ended in a tie. The celebrations both before and after the game will mark the reminiscences of the year.

In the personal sphere, a long line of brilliant football accomplishments was climaxed by Dreusicke's 90-yard run in the DeKalb game. Duke Duhan's work on the basketball floor was often equally spectacular. Bloesch, Bork, and Wegener played excellent baseball. Dick Gerfen climaxed four years as a varsity star in tennis; he has won recognition as one of the ranking players in the I. I. A. C. Dreusicke again was the bulwark of the track team, and the outstanding broad-jumper in the state.

Coaches Langhorst, Arends, and DeTuerk did yeoman service during the year; and if we were to award a potted palm, we should give it to all three of them.
This year was the first for Oliver Langhorst as coach of the Elmhurst teams. Coach Langhorst was himself a student at Elmhurst a few years back and is therefore well acquainted with athletics around the College. While attending Elmhurst he played varsity football, baseball and basketball. He served as captain of both the baseball and the football teams. From Elmhurst he went down to the University of Illinois where he earned his letter in football also. Here he learned his football under Zuppke.

Coach has fitted in well at Elmhurst and has earned many friends during his first year here. Lack of sufficient material has handicapped him this year with his teams, and usually, he has had only enough men available to form one team.

As this article is being printed the baseball season is getting under way and "Pete" is confidently looking forward to a rather successful season as his material looks much more promising than did either the football or the basketball material.

Coach, because of his spring baseball duties, turned over the track team to James DeTuerk while Coach Arends began his fifth year as coach of the tennis team. DeTuerk also was assistant football coach.

Oliver “Pete” Langhorst, graduate of Elmhurst Academy and Illinois University, a crack athlete and a swell fellow, ran smack into the job of making a football team for the 1933 season out of Elmhurst’s habitually scant material. He was ably assisted by Assistant Coach Jimmy DeTuerk.

Whether or not the new Pirate mentor was successful is for you to judge. Although his team lost more games than it won, it showed constant improvement as the season wore on. And although the squad out for practice often numbered less than one team, Pete still molded a team that, had its players been a bit more experienced, would undoubtedly have gone places (don’t get too inquisitive concerning the places).

Captain John DeTuerk, guard, Armin Dreusicke, halfback, and Sheenie Wintermeyer, quarter, are the veterans who formed the nucleus of the team and who will be missed when next year’s season rolls around—or does it roll? (Ed. note: what difference does it make? Get going, and finish this!)
High spots on the schedule were the Homecoming game with Wheaton, and the final fray of the year with DeKalb. The Wheaton game was really as thrilling as the Homecoming Dance, and brother, that's saying something. In the first place, some mug from that school decided that he'd bust up our festivities, and scored a touchdown. But Armin Dreusicke, with the ball tucked under his cuddling arm, and wielding an effective and devastating snickersnee with his driving arm, had different ideas. So he ups and scores a touchdown. Which ties the score. Then the boys got polite; so the game ended in a tie. And all ties are moral victories. All very swell.

The final game with DeKalb Teachers was a study in old-fashioned fighting spirit. The Blue and White bowed to a superior DeKalb team by a score of 17-6. During the entire game the team was outgained and outplayed, but not out-fought, which little assertion the warriors from the Teachers College will undoubtedly verify. Dreusicke's trusty snickersnee again stood him in good stead. Besides cutting down many would-be DeKalb scorers, he knifed his way 90 yards for Elmhurst's lone score. Thus endeth the tale (what a tale) of another football season. The Coach did a good job. The players did a good job. So there you are.

FOOTBALL CAPTAIN

John De Tuerk, whose consistently fine play at guard has placed him among Elmhurst's football immortals, captained the Pirate eleven during the 1933 season. "Tarzan" (the monicker was tagged on him by Elmhurst sport fans) proved an inspiring leader, and fighting player. Not a few local football experts number him among the best guards in the Little Nine-teen. Opposing teams sent very few plays through his position.

When John graduates in June, Elmhurst football and track teams will suffer a serious loss, for he has been a leader and athlete of exceptional ability.
Elmhurst completed a twelve game schedule with three wins and nine losses. Conference competition resulted in one victory, six losses. The high spot of the season came in the final game on the schedule with our age old rival, Wheaton, who came down to Elmhurst inspired by their victory over North Central a few days before, only to take it on the chin by a 39 to 36 count. "Pete" certainly met up with a lot of bad luck in the form of ineligibility and a continual dropping off of squad members, but those who stuck out the season got the biggest thrill of their college career in their hard earned victory over Wheaton. The team did not possess the necessary finishing drive, losing out in the second half of a number of games after displaying a winning calibre of basketball during the first half.

In regards to scoring, "Duke" Duhan, a junior, led in that department with 91 points while Captain Uthlaut scored 81 points to take second. Next in line was Lambarth, a guard, with 62 points. Wegener led in percentage of free throws made, sinking nine out of eleven attempts.
Next year the team will be without the services of two of its men, “Chet” Uthlaut and “Red” Wegener. Both these men played fine ball the season through and especially did they exhibit some fine playing in the final Wheaton game, bringing their basketball career at Elmhurst to a grand climax. Duhan was high point man in this game.

Next year’s team will be built around the remaining five regulars. Lettermen for this season were Duhan, Uthlaut, Lambarth, Drawert, Wegener, Eilers and Strand.

The manager this year was Frank Bork who also played with the “B” team.

BASKETBALL CAPTAIN

Chester “Chet” Uthlaut, who has been one of the finest centers Elmhurst has ever had, led the Pirate cage team through its 1933-34 campaign. Each year “Chet” has been in the front rank of Elmhurst sharpshooters, and in his Sophomore year, 1932-33, he led the team in scoring with thirty-eight baskets and thirty-five free throws for a total of 111 points.

This season, Uthlaut was used alternately at forward and center, and proved his versatility by handling both positions excellently and again placing himself among the leading scorers.

Bottom: Chapleau, Baumrucker, H. Wintermeyer, Biasch, Wegener, Captain, Bork.

Baseball prospects look rather bright this year, due to the return of six veterans from last year's team. The six lettermen are Captain Wegener, second base; Frank Bork, shortstop; Paul Bloesch, pitcher; and Roland Vetter, Bill Biasch and Charles Baumrucker, all outfielders. Biasch, however, may be shifted to an infield post this year because of a scarcity of infield material.

Coach Langhorst has a pennant contender. Barring close defeats—which spoiled the season of '33—the Buc nine should go right to the tape with Lake Forest and North Central. Undoubtedly, the team is well fortified defensively. Bloesch is a reliable twirler, and judging from pre-season practice performances, he will turn in more than his share of well pitched games. The success of the team will rest on its batting punch.

BASEBALL CAPTAIN

This year's baseball team is captained by Werner Wegener, better known as "Red." Red has been varsity second baseman for the past two years. Although small in stature, Red patrols second base in a scintillating fashion. Besides being a mighty fine fielder, Red is also a dangerous man at the plate, and his bat has been instrumental in many an Elmhurst rally. His team is shaping up very well this year, and we feel confident that he will lead it through a successful season.
James DeTuerk took over the coaching of the track team this year while Coach Langhorst was busy with the baseball team. The schedule contains three indoor and eight outdoor meets.

The first outdoor dual meet with Armour served to show that the team is strong in the track events but rather weak in field events. Of the track events, the team managed to take five firsts. This comprised the greater part of the scoring done by Elmhurst. Dreusicke took a first in the 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash and the broad jump; Wolf took a first in the mile and half mile; Camerer took a first in the two mile. DeTuerk took a second in the high hurdles and a third in the low hurdles, while Steve took a third in the high hurdles and Jaeger a third in the quarter mile.

TRACK CAPTAIN

For the past three years Armin Dreu-sicke has captained the track team. In his specialty, the broad jump, he is considered among the best in the country. In the U. S. Olympic tryouts he jumped 24' 4", and in doing so, placed third. Already, early in the season, he has given us reason to believe that he may break that record this year.

Armin is an exceptional dash man; he has several times run the hundred in :09.8.

In the first dual meet of the season, an outdoor affair with Armour Tech at the University of Chicago, Dremke showed up well with three firsts, accounting for fifteen points alone.
PERSONNEL

Coach Arends, Sibly, Eisen, Drawert, Carson, Niensted, Gerfen, Strand, Hoecker.

This season has presented innumerable tennis obstacles for the coach, C. C. Arends, to solve. With the return of only one letterman things do not look as bright as they might. Captain Dick Gerfen, veteran and star for three seasons, is the single returning letterman. Material at hand is rather green and inexperienced. Among the aspirants to fill the places left vacant from last year are Niensted, Drawert, Eisen, Hoecker and Carson. Theirs will be a difficult job because filling the places of the three men whom we had last year will be no easy task. However, despite the serious handicaps the team is facing, Arends and his squad members are hopefully looking forward to a profitable season.

A heavy and difficult schedule is staring Arends' boys in the face.

TENNIS CAPTAIN

Having served in the capacity last year, being captain is no new experience to Richard Gerfen. "Dick" as he is better known, is a player to whom the term veteran may be correctly applied; he has played varsity tennis every year that he has attended Elmhurst and has earned his letter each year. He is well known in tennis circles in and around Elmhurst and has repeatedly shown his ability to wield a racket.

Last year, while he served as captain, his team went through a nearly perfect season. He and a team mate captured second place honors in doubles in the Little Nineteen Conference. We feel positive that Dick will continue his good work this spring.
Two lettermen formed the nucleus of this year's Cross Country team. A freshman, Camerer, proved a fine addition to the squad. He was a consistent point-winner throughout the year.

The season, from the standpoint of wins and losses, was rather an indifferent one. The team competed in four meets, winning one, a dual meet with Mission House College, which was a feature of the Homecoming festivities.

Len Wolf, a Junior, captained the team. He also acted as coach.

November 4—Loyola Invitational Cross Country meet—7th place
AN ACTIVE Intramural Program each year, large enough so that all students who have any desire to participate, may do so, is the aim of Elmhurst College. With a slogan of “athletics for everyone” we again planned an Intramural Program with league contests in touch football, basketball, and playground baseball, and one-day track and cross-country meets. To insure an added interest in Intramurals, it was decided to give the winners of the league contests an award in the form of an arm shield, designating the type of sport in which the award was won.

This year, as last year, the competitive groups were divided by classes. The Seniors and Sophomores each comprising one team, while two teams were chosen from both the Junior and Freshmen classes because they had the largest competitive groups. By dividing the four classes into six teams, it was made possible for more students to take part.

Eight men participated in the Intramural Cross Country meet. The Sophomores were the winners with Karasek, Munz, and Tetzlaff getting the winning points for their class.

The Touch Football schedule which was greatly favored by the excellent fall weather, was finished rather early because there were no postponed games. During the season eighty-six men competed on the various class squads. Last year’s champions, the Sophomore Blues, who are now the Juniors, were again the winners of the Touch Football championship. Those receiving awards on the Junior Team were: Kroenlein, Weber, Vetter, Wagner, Uthlaut, Drawert, Bloesch, Siemsen, Bessmer, Doty, Dusheck, Stahlhut, Andersen.

A league of six teams was organized in basketball with a schedule of ten games for each team. The championship again went to a Junior team, namely, the Junior Browns. Awards were made to the following members of the Junior team: Hoefer, Bloesch, Allrich, Weber, Wagner, Kroenlein, Siemsen, Dusheck, Rheinsmith and Steve. Throughout the season, sixty-five men played on the various teams.

The Intramural Track meet and Playground Baseball have as yet not begun. There will only be four teams in the track meet, each class comprising one team. At the present time it looks as though the winner of the meet is a tossup between the Sophomores and the Freshmen.

The baseball league will also be comprised of four teams, one from each class. The baseball schedule will consist of either twenty-four or thirty-six games depending on the amount of time. From all indications, the Juniors will possess another championship by the time that the schedule is completed.

JUNIOR INTRA-MURAL CHAMPIONSHIP TEAM

Top: Taebel, Seimsen, Bloesch, Steve, Drews, Stahlhut, Rest.
Bottom: Sample, Gieselmann, Eilers, Duhan, Kroenlein, Dusheck.
THE PURPOSE of intramural sports is to give all the women students a chance to participate in some form of competitive athletics.

The inter-class games carried on throughout the past year were successful as well as interesting and exciting. A very fine spirit of sportsmanship and cooperation prevailed among those taking part in the games, by the team captains, referees and assistants.

The fall sport this year was soccer. The Upperclass girls trounced the Freshman team for the interclass title. The intramural basketball tournament consisted of six games between the Juniors, Sophomores, and Frosh. The Sophomores came out on top with three wins. The Frosh were second. Miniature gold basketballs were awarded to the winning team at a banquet held in the Women's Union Room.

This spring there will be a tennis tournament. The players who win this tourney will compose the tennis team, which is scheduled to play matches with North Central and Wheaton.

WE TALK A GREAT DEAL
Cloves and Nut Megs
Prize Winning Photograph

by Henry Duhan
You drifted off, so sure and gay,
Like Peter Pan in winsome May;
So proud and sure of life and love,
Of earth beneath and sky above,
You laughed at life and old love’s due.
While cloudless skies hung over you,
You laughed with Pan’s dear, careless mirth;
While trees and grasses greened the earth,
The world was yours! Within your reach
Was all that carefree love can teach.

But autumn’s here, and every hue
Fades slower than the loves you knew;
Each drifting leaf, from every tree,
Foretells the loss of lover’s glee;
The graying skies and browning earth
Reflect your sighs of lovers’ death;
Your rose-like mouth, which love conveyed,
Resembles still a rose—decayed.
Your pride, your youth, your loves have gone;
Only the hunger lingers on.

When winter comes, my dear, no doubt
You’ll wish I’d come and thaw you out!
MASSES OF MAN

Today I heard the voices of man in agony,
The twisted souls that see no hope, no mercy.
I saw among the masses of man cursory
Things of white sucked dry, just nugatory,

I hurried home still wrapt in that dark spell,
Of the earth being hurled atom by atom, into nothingness—
I say the more we learn we show the less.
For today, I walked as Dante with Man in Hell!

A SONNET TO WILLA

A glorious moment, full of content and sweet
Was brought to bear on my impassive soul;
And now, why must I wake? Is Time so fleet
That I must hurry? Where is my goal?
Is it to the soothing breath of Zephyr’s cold,
Or to some inferno of passions’ torrid heat,
That overwhelsms and draws? Or do I seek
The solitary sombrous shaded fold,
To see a dismal twilight, slowly mold
And pass? Oh sleep, infuse me with your calm
Mute tender strings of ethereal pathos sweet
That entwine, and blends as heavenly nectar balm,
And rest. For now my love I pause, to greet
So content, in quiet rapture at your feet.

SONNETS TO A LADY

I

The night grows quiet—silent star-gleams show
The depths of woman's instinct in your face,
Checking me as I unrepentant go
Along my futile way of weak disgrace.
Your cool touch clears the fever of my sighs,
And low I bend to brush with kisses' flight
The veil of wind-tost hair above your eyes:
So fair you stand against the evening light.
A dream lights up an instant of my sight,
The long, sane years of garden-bred content,
That banishes the shadows of the night,
My fiercely flapping spirits of dissent.
But love and all its joys I dare not seek,
I am too tired, too wild, and all too weak.

J. L. R.

II

I am so tired of looking for the way,
Striving to catch each moment's firefly spark
And mould them in a flame whose lambent ray
Might lead me from this grey, miasma, dark.
The cant of creed, the sophists' gruesome jest,
Sound in the marshbirds' screeching, wailing cry
That gives the only answer to my quest,
Of where I go, and when and how and why.
And yet I dare not linger in this maze,
And dumbly wait Time's final, fatal rout;
Better to steer my life-course through the haze
And strike, hell-bound, the misty stream of doubt.
All is not drab while with me through this flight,
I have your love and you throughout the night.

VULGARIANA

A VULGARIAN'S IMITATION OF
SAMUEL HOFFENSTEIN

My neighbor is a goose girl
And tends her silly geese;
I'd rather be a loose—pearl,
And shirk in shining peace.

My neighbor prates of life's ideals,
Of chastity and truth;
But when I wish for Hudson seals
My big asset is youth.

My neighbor studies half the night
The vagaries of Sand;
Myself, I doubt if George can quite
Compare with Sally Rand.

Care I if neighbors note at dawn
My fleeing in from day?
The aching dogs I'm walking on
Were willing dogs—hey, hey!
VULGARIANA

RAMBLING RAPTURES OF A WANDERING VULGARIAN

Night—soft, dark pansy petals
Tall
Vast—like the dome of some ancient Mohammedan mosque.
Moonlight—lacy moonlight
Like dainty filigree work
In a temple.

Wind low in the grass
Wind high in the trees.
Stinging, scolding, threatening,
Pleading, caressing, gentle.
Wrapped round me like a cloak.
Wind on the tennis courts;
Dirty, goofy wind.
Wind through my racket strings,
Wind through my hair.
Wind in my eyes, wind in my heart—Nuts!
AS YOU LIKE IT

“I’ll spurn thee, wretch!” said gentle Phoebe.
“Well, let’s get going,” answered Corin;
“By such a mighty man as I be,
A little spooning could be borin’.”

BOGIE

My fears are stronger than my loves;
My loves are shy as turtle doves
That hover round my heart and pen,
Pleading to get in; but when
My soul’s restraint begins to slack
My thoughts arise and fling them back.

UTILITY

If all were lost except one hour, sweet,
Together in some quiet nook;
We would not stir our love to passion’s heat,
But, touching hands, we’d sit—and look.

EARLY APRIL

The last retreating tide of winter cold
Lays bare the nakedness of spring;
Even the sun’s emboldened flood of gold
Only serves to melt the tattered cloak
Of snow that winter hoped cling
About spring’s shivering shoulders till she woke
And stirred herself to green the fields and lanes
That, frozen now, lie naked to the April rains.
VULGARIANA

OLD ROCKING CHAIR

I sat down in my rocking-chair
And rocked, and rocked, and rocked.
    From far and near
    To see me there
The people flocked and flocked.
So I went rocking, rocking,
And the people kept on flocking
Till the warm mid-summer turned to winter cold.
    Then the people froze to death,
    And frosty was my breath,
But I just rocked and rocked till I grew old.

And the people all around,
Now rotting on the ground,
Seemed to question with their staring, sightless eyes:
    When will you stop that rocking?
    It's positively shocking,
But I thought I saw their bodies heave with sighs.
It was not sighs that hove those corpses,
It was letting out great burpses,
And these burpses did not very long suffice.
The swollen stiffness all burst,
The place smelled as if accursed,
And I stopped my endless rocking in a trice.
"GROWING OLD ALONG WITH ME?"

"Grow old along with me?"
"The best is yet to be?"
I wish with all my heart that it were true.
Oh! Youth, don't go so soon!
Time! Hesitate to prune
This living tree; don't brush away the dew
That keeps this flower fresh;
Preserve my solid flesh
And let my blood flow with uncooling heat
Pumped ever by a heart with steady beat.
I hope never at the gate of age to bow!
The best is yet to be? The best is now!

TO Nome

O lady whom I might have loved, draw near—
But carefully look past me from the start,
Your brown-eyed, level gaze once stopped my heart—
And give me, lovely lass, your patient ear.
Your ear!—but hide it with your hand, I fear
To longer look upon its dainty art.
Thank God, your hands are gloved! A sudden start
Within my breast has warned me of the sear
Their coral sweetness burned into my lips.
My lips—and yours! O help, Athene, I plead!
You bade me tell you golden nymph, who flaps
My heart about, my love had gone to seed
And from each one another blossom grew.
But that's a lie, Athene, as well you knew!
IS IT FUTILE

Why can’t we ever realize,
Or even, use our eyes.
To see how simple life can be,
If we were as one family.

With greed and selfishness forgotten
The world wouldn’t be half so rotten.
And if each was another’s friend;
Life and happiness would blend.

To live in perfect harmony
Beneath the sky and a God made tree.
To fill our breasts full of hope
To range our lives over a wider scope.

If we would let nature’s beauty
Do what God made its duty.
I wonder how long we would live.
Using all it could give.

But we never do appreciate
Until it is almost too late.
What God did so carefully
To be made use of by you and me.

Merrill Wagner

MY MISTRESS’ EYEBROW

I cannot look upon my mistress’ face
But that my greedy gaze is drawn, like light
From sun to earth, to that most gracious site
Of all love’s charm, her brow; whereon I trace
Some tiny, throbbing veins, that will erase
Its cool and pale serenity with bright
And lovely flush of love when I tonight
Do seek her quivering lips’ most tender grace;
And to those sensitive and curving arcs
Of gnome-spun hair that symbolize her youth
And do her sex epitomize; the marks
Of love’s dear thoughts are ever there. Thus truth
The melancholy Jaques did not inflate,
And Shakespeare’s fantasy is made sedate!
NOW THAT you have read this, our book, behold the people who slapped it together. We are all earnest, God-fearing souls, and have done our little worst to please you. If you don’t like it, tear out this sheet on the dotted line, and stick the 1934 Elms on the bottom shelf, under last month’s Woman’s Home Companion. Before you do so, however, please to look at the new and original features of our yearbook,—the tasty and arty border panels, the superior photography, and the excellent format. And last, but not least, read on from here; take a look at our advertisers, (please mention the 1934 Elms in answering this advertisement—just mention it, in an offhand, diffident manner and see what you get.) And another thing—it is our proud boast that the 1934 Elms will, or has, “come out” about two days and one special delivery before the 1933 Elms. Are there any questions, gentle reader? If not, we will all go down and have a beer, or maybe two beers—better still, let us have a beer for every proof and editorial error in the Elms—and send for the wagon.
